

Canadian Authors who wrote on Africa

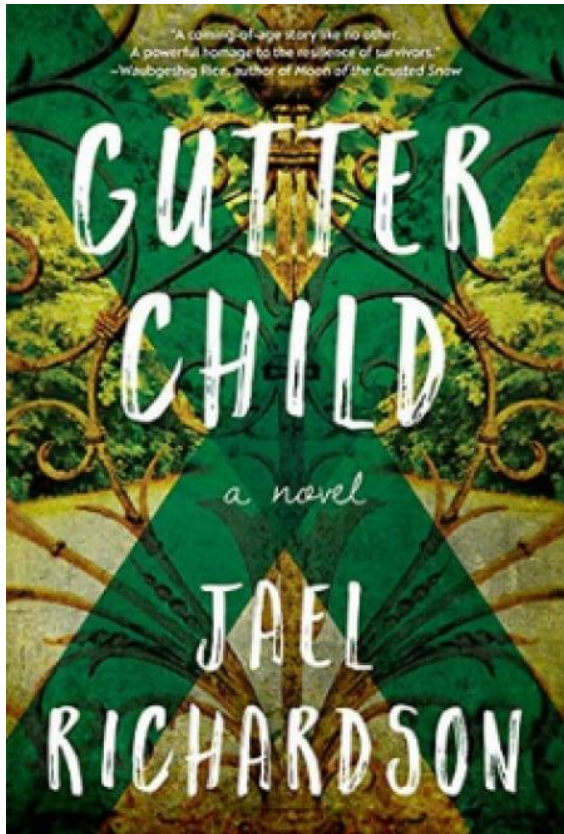

Trivia –WGM Stand-up –April 15, 2021

They Call Me George

Cecil Foster

The Untold Story of Black Train Porters and the Birth of Modern Canada.

Gutter Child

Jael Richardson

About a young girl growing up in a world divided: the Mainland, where people of privilege live, and the Gutter, a police state where the most vulnerable reside.

Butter Honey Pig Bread

Francesca Ekwuyasi

A novel about twin sisters, Kehinde and Taiye, and their mother, Kambirinachi. Kambirinachi believes she was a spirit who was supposed to die as a small child.

The Night Piece

Jenna Carter

*A collection of career-spanning stories by Scotiabank Giller Prize and Canada Reads winner. He draws from his previous publications, including Despair and Other Stories of Ottawa and Beauty & Sadness, as well as works that have not been published before.*

Burning Sugar

Cicely Belle Blain

A poetry collection that explores Black identity, history and the impact of colonization on Black bodies.

J'irai danser sur la tombe de Senghor

Blaise Ndala

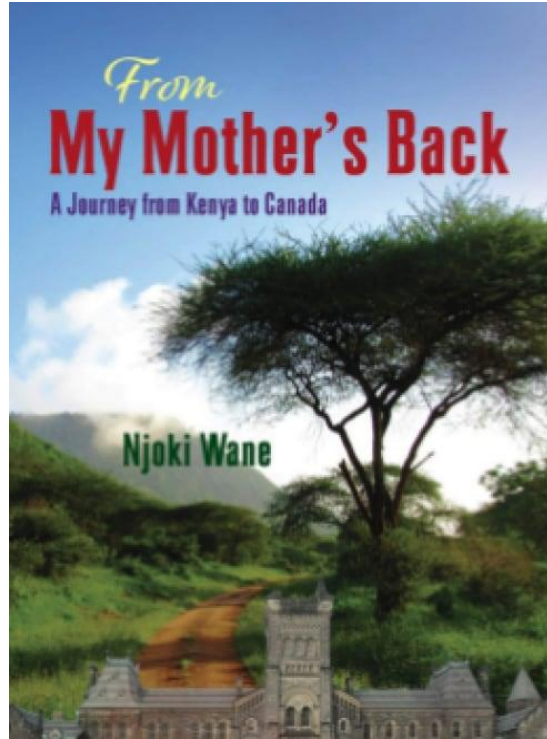

Lauréat du Prix du livre d'Ottawa, ce récit raconte le « combat du siècle » entre Mohamed Ali et George Foreman en 1974 à Kinshasa, au Zaïre. Ce roman au style vif et incisif montre l'Afrique dans toutes ses nuances, entre dictature, folie des grandeurs, lutte des classes, poésie et magie.

Notre Afrique

Lucie Pagé

Le récit porte un regard sur la place du continent africain dans le monde et dans le courant de la mondialisation, et sur le rôle de l'Afrique du Sud dans la direction que prendra le continent tout entier.

My Mother's Back

Njoki Wane

The author reflects on her childhood living in Kenya where her parents owned a small coffee farm. The book explores her African identity and how her upbringing and close relationship with her mother ensured her sense of self as a Black woman.

As you know the list is not exhaustive. Please suggest others in the chat.

Thank you!